This weekend, San Diego is in for a rerun of a publicity stunt by “Los MinutOmen”

Another Minuteman-style group is gearing up to “patrol” the California border with Mexico at various between the Pacific Ocean and the Arizona state line. As they head to the South Bay and drive past Chicano Park on I-5, this group will see a 50 x 10 foot canvass painted to resemble a movie billboard (see attachment). It will read as follows: “Coming to a border near you...LOS MINUTOMEN...starring cazamigrantes in search of media attention...Two thumbs down!”

Cazamigrantes is Spanish for migrant hunters. The billboard was designed by local artist Susan Yamagata and painted by Southwestern College’s Border Arts Workshop. It was commissioned by Latino organizations in San Diego.
